Am Amusing Trial.

One of the most amusing cases ever yet tried in the police court was called this morning. Dan Kid, colored, filed charges against Liza Martin also colored, his sister-in-law for disturbing his peace. Liza appeared and plead not guilty. Dan was called to the stand to state the nature of her offense. Now in his coolest moments Dan cannot talk two minutes without stuttering and when called to the witness stand his excitement was so great that his efforts to relate the circumstances were so ridicular that the court and spectators were convulsed with laughter. It was simply impossible to maintain order, when the judge himself was in a roar. Poor Dan became more and more perplexed as the crowd laughed, and became so confused he could not talk at all.

The attorney told her to stop, and the court called for a halt, now in tears and now in anger. She finally trotted in under the wire with a strong plea of her long acquaintance with the judge, and begged to be allowed to depart in peace for the sake of her son. Mrs. Martin is a confirmed inebreate, but her mind is undoubtedly unbalanced. In Kansas City a short time ago, she was seized with a voilent enthusiasm and harangued the crowds that would gather around her on the streets. Couldn't do Without Her,

If there were no women, men would have no object in life; their mustaches would cease to interest them; they would not care a Chinaman whether their collars were ironed well or not; they would have nobody to nurse them when they had the toothache, or to keep them from believing they were going to die when an old fashioned stomach-ache had its grip upon them. There would be nobody to make ice cream for, and no small edition of flesh and blood to hug. There would be nobody to fight against being kissed and then to snuggle up to a coat sleeve and to take to it as naturally as a cat does cream. Most important of all there would be nobody to write against, to complain of and to love with all your heart and soul. Without her man would never get to heaven, and without them they would never have a taste of the other place on earth. So, if Tom has any sense whatever, he'll put his arm around the woman he is her, and wonder, as she does, what in the world he'd do without her.
